

Praise for Portals into the Sky –

“Seeing the beginnings of aviation through the amazing photos in Portals into the Sky gives us all a greater respect and admiration for our early pilots.” -Sarah Baselici

“Once I opened the front cover, I couldn't put it down. Aircraft enthusiasts won't want to miss this one!” -Neil C.

“Not only are there pictures of cockpits from 100 different planes but also the men and women that flew and built them!” -Ellie White

“Everyone can name a handful of aircraft, such as Cessna, Piper, or Mooney, but rare peeks inside lesser known cockpits will delight and perhaps surprise even the hardcore aviation buff.” – Brigit Hartop

Cessna Sensations: A Collection of Vintage Photographs

“This is a gorgeous, authentic collection of photos, memos, letters, maps and schematics. You'll even learn that Cessna built a helicopter!” -Paula Williams

“The period suitcases in the baggage compartments; the proper hat on the hat shelf – these photos are like a time-capsule, capturing each component of personal air travel.” -Tom Huf

Vintage Airliners: A Collection of Vintage Photographs

“I thoroughly enjoyed John's book VINTAGE AIRLINERS. I learned something new on each page which I find amazing considering how long I have been around this business.” - Capt. Nick Louis, Chairman, Airline Pilot's Historical Society

Martin Jensen demonstrated a mahogany plywood aircraft known as the SLUG. Both the cockpit and aircraft were photographed outside of New York City in these undated photographs. (Ault & Wiborg)
